Most unfortunately our dutiful scribe Not Cleaver was under the weather with some viral infection and asked another infection, Fungus, to stand-in as scribe. More likely under the covers with PP, but get better and see you back next week hopefully.

Today's run was organized (not) by the Thai Connection especially to honour Khun Cobbler for his "HA HA - 55th" birthday. To top their organizing off they made this a T-shirt run. Unfortunately our turn out was high and the shirts were limited so some of the newer hashers didn't get one. Well, sorry lads and lasses, but keep coming, you'll get a shirt one day.

Our GM opened the circle by roasting the hares, or as it turned out, those hares in attendance by asking each one tough questions like "what did you do persopnally? Did you look for the trails, or did you lay the paper, and did you place the signs". Well it seems that the only one that could come up with an answer wasn't in the circle, Cartoon. So, while Tiger (lead hare??) sat on the ice for not even having a telephone Cartoon proceeded to inform everyone exactly how much wasn't done by the Thai Connection. As it turned out the most involvement was right then and there in the circle where there was free beer for the hares. Well done Thai Connection and even more "well done" to Cartoon, who didn't even get his name listed with the other hares on the shirt.

Virgins in. In came one girl but Fungus stayed on his stool. Then in came another girl, a little more properly dressed for water and Fungus got up to make sure all was wetted and whetted properly, which got him a mouthful of water shot back at him. Good on you girls, welcome to the hash and we hope to see more of you.

Run Offences Were interrupted by GM to make a couple of shirt awards. Butt Plug was awarded his 200-Run shirt and Two Dogs Fucking received his 25-Run shirt. Keep it up guys! Back to the RO's Bullet Rash called in Cartoon for the proper recognition he deserved for having done all the haring tasks (except drinking the free hare beer). Fungus got Rusty Hook and Tequila Slapper in. As turns out TS every week outruns the front runners as they leave the circle in order to get ahead enough to turn around and snap their picture. Rusty Hook hasn't been around for a while and apparently felt the need to pour on the coal to outrun TS and nearly ran her to death. Welcome back RH, good to see your so fit still.

Mini Mouse called in all the sponsors listed on the reverse of the shirt. Then she called in the "support" side of the sponsors and doubled the down-down beer going out. Anyway, good job to Thai Connection, Cartoon, and the rest of the support team that gave us a good day and a great shirt.

Birthdays Google Ass called in for his 73rd Birthday beer and a well deserved HBYC. Keep in mind it's GA out running all the front runners to catch them on video 2 or 3 times each run. GA's birthday wish to be served beer by two sexy ladies turned into a scrum-like affair that even had WTFIA in for the ride. Be careful what you wish for in the Hash. On the plus side...30 Baht Beers. Yes GA.

Steward The Reverend Fingerlicker entertained the circle with a tribute to our Heavenly Hasher Popeye by recalling a time when they were lost together and emerged not just one ridge from where they needed to be, but one valley beyond. The Rev then got all the Yanks in to thank us for Trump and get a free beer. Thanks Rev for the beer and the good spot, even though 72% of the words were indecipherable. No Hope then got the Rev back in for tramping back and forth through the cow patty 12 times.

Steward Lucky Lek was called in as a back-to-back with Reverend Fingerlicker so the notes went from shite trying to follow the Rev to ultrashite even trying to figure out the topic of the jokes, much less the jokes themselves. Well, a lot of hashers were called in, and a lot of down-down beers served and the conclusion was a peaceful rendition by LL of Amazing Grace. Amazing LL, and probably a good spot, we need to think about it some. Everyone was impressed when you got the call from Obama.

GM got Cartoon in for an impromptu spot to fill out the rest of the daylight before getting the hares in for the judgement call. JC ran the circle through the various calls but some nagging pesky voice from the circle annoyed JC enough to quickly call in St. Blow Job and throw the Hash Shit ring of honour around his neck. Circle Closed.

Not Cleaver, get well and see you next week.
