

SCRIBE REPORT RUN #1925

Saturday 2nd September 2023
Hares: Wilma, Little Toe & Mask

The Laager site was in Vichit, Chao Fah West. The recent wet weather had turned the area into a dirty great big mud bath. It rained off and on for the duration of the afternoon so it got sloppier and sloppier! Apparently some people pay a lot of money in spas to get plastered in mud!

The GM, Invisible Man, was nowhere to be seen (he's actually on his jollies in England)!

Butt Plug stood in as GM and introduced The Hares, although Little Toe was back in Patong. The Run Master gave Substandard the Horn and he gave it a quick strangled blast. The Hares warned the runners about watching out for traffic but forgot to tell them about a bridge (don't cross it go through it?!). It was a very short walk on the flat (not long enough, some might say!) It was well marked along muddy paths, open grassy bogs and through a little bit of forest. The run, however, was apparently not so good: An anonymous source revealed it was 'pants, shambolic and abysmal.'

Back at the circle, the new PH3 umbrellas were flying off the shelf, unsurprisingly (only 360 baht). The rain sent some home early, while the hard-core crew stayed put. The GM sarcastically thanked Substandard for his 'horning' and laying of pink paper.

"Announmen!" cried Lucky Lek...

(more details on the PH3 website)

Trois (3) French Virgins registered but only un (1) was left by this stage. I thought kneeling in the mud was punishment enough but he got a good icing too! Mon dieu (My god)!

Welcome back to our Returners!
The GM didn't want to know where they've been, where they've eaten or anything about them! Fair enough...

And goodbye lone Departer.
See you in November Shart.

Circle highlights/run offences:

Campari had an issue with the 'guy with the red paper'. In his defence, Substandard said the rain must have washed it all away! Are they new shoes Campari? Oh, and new hair?

The Patong Bus boys didn't check the Lager site 'misdirections'. They made it to King Power but then went on past Central and up to Heroine's Monument. Thumb In The Bum finally phoned Butt Plug to find out where they should be. And yes, they were late!

Piss Drinker has a new hero - Thumb In The Bum. He arrived late but caught up with the pack, with a beer in his hand. He 'bounded like a chicken, leapt through the swamp' but the beer didn't move at all. Amazing agility!

Jaws 'mixed it with the front runners' earlier and then remembered why he prefers walking: He had to put up with listening to obnoxious language! In a counter-sting, Manneken Pis brought his mother, Mummykin Pis, back today. He couldn't remember her number at registration and Jaws asked, "Shall I put her down as a child?"

During the circle, Woodpecker kindly held the umbrella over King Klomg's head, whilst she got soaked wet through. Well-spotted GM - Romance is not dead!

Not Short Enough only walked today as he said he was injured. When he saw the runners coming in, he decided to have a quick sprint before stopping to puff and pant! Trying to show off?

According to Wilma, nobody completed the whole run but these outstanding athletes did 90% of the run. They're true blue!

B.A. was the Steward for the afternoon and you wouldn't have known that he was a Virgin. There was some good-natured ribbing of fellow Hashers, with some micky-taking of the Canadians, Belgians and Scots. His finale was about why dogs are better than wives – controversial but funny!

At the end of the circle the crowd shouted "good run" until Not Long Enough asked, "Does anybody say Hash Shit?" Suddenly, there was a shift and so 'Hash Shit' was declared.
