

SCRIBE REPORT RUN #1928

Saturday 23rd September 2023
Hares: Murkury, Substandard & Mask
phuket-hhh.com

The Laager site was in Chalong, on the ridge above Soi Nakok. It was a gorgeous gravelled spot (not), just next to the lane. The Hares had asked us to park carefully and mind the ditch - very thoughtful. Given the weather warnings, it was a good turnout and it stayed drier than expected.

We welcomed back Invisible Man as GM. Did you do any shopping while you were in the UK? Find out later... He introduced the Hares, Murkury and Mask. Unfortunately, they were a man short as Substandard was feeling substandard. Not Long Enough was absent too, so Joxymoron stood in as Run Master. Thumb In The Bum was 'given the horn' and so we were all set to go...

The runners and walkers set off together and nearly all missed the first bit of paper going into the forest. Murkury, being a caring Hare, pointed us in the right direction. The wind started howling in the rubber forest and my thoughts turned to getting clobbered with falling branches. We tackled a long stony up gully but the highlight was sliding down the slippery slope of silt! The run was 'okay' according to a Nordic source with 'good paper' and with 'a little bit up and down'. High praise indeed!

Afterwards, Invisible Man was nowhere to be seen so Wilma gave the 5 minute call. He made it back just in time, after stopping to help a girl with nettle stings. He thanked the Hares for laying paper in such awful weather and for taking the trouble to cut steps in on the trail.

Lucky Lek came up to call, "Announemen" but not before telling us how he couldn't find the Laager earlier (he'd made 6 calls to Fungus!):

Bike Hash - Sunday 24th September in Ban Para.

Kamala Koma is un-cancelled - Tuesday 26th September.

Sawatdee Ka Returners.

Somebody Else's Dick had a bit too much fun icing this Virgin.

Any birthdays? Assterix called Marina. Didn't you mean Tequila Slapper?

Circle highlights/run offences:

Wilma wanted to know how many times Lucky Lek had been to this Laager site. In his defense, his 'memory is too old'.

Wilma was impressed that Polish My Crabs didn't use the steps but seemed to 'skateboard' down the concrete slope instead.

GM thanked the Hares for providing us with a 'skiing experience' out there on the slopes.

Invisible Man was happy to meet our newest Hasher, Pimp Squeak and thanked Fungus for coming up with the clever name.

Polish My Crabs was impressed with the little chap in the black t-shirt. He was up with the front runners, finding the trail, calling On On.

Accident asked Tequila Slapper to take a staged running photo of him. He wanted to send it to Coroner (who's away) because he had told Accident that he had to run. There's your proof Coroner!

Here's Sofia, the wee one that the GM helped earlier. Up until now, she and Mum, Anna, didn't have Hash names so Fungus came up with the goods again; Wonder How (Mum) and Wonder Why (Sofia).

New shoes from England, GM? I think he drank down one or two chewy bits in there. It's good for your immunity so they say!

Bunny Hop was caught playing on her phone. She has amazing leg strength (she's hovering over the ice!)

Bobagob couldn't make it for his Steward Spot today so there was an 'open mic' session. As expected, Repressed One stepped up and gave us a hattrick of belting (yet inappropriate) one-liners. Thanks also to the GM and Lucky Lek for entertaining us too.

Thumb In the Bum.
Off back to Oz.

And then it was time for the final judgement. Everyone called good run but Wilma wasn't happy because of a cut he'd got on his shin. Were you following paper Wilma? Anyway, he quickly stopped talking to avoid Hash Shit. And so it was a good run!
