Hares: B.A. & Swollen Colon

phuket-hhh.com

At times Phuket Hashers are treated so some very interesting perspectives.

Today's hares, B.A. and Swollen Colon, used a section of the Mosquito Lake and Manik reservoir watershed winding us up through an area we haven't run in for many years. Some of the trails went through newly planted hillside orchards and others wound past and over the manicured drainage courses feeding strung-together catchments of different sizes, shapes and depths, each with nurtured plants and some with fish. As we climbed the two “noses” of this area we snaked up through palm oil and opening views across the island in several directions we could actually focus on without tripping on roots and vines. Well done hares!

The weather held nicely for us giving us a few patters of rain early in the day giving us mostly sun and towering cloud formations. Well done hares!

GM Invisible Man, relishing in his next-to-last circle, marched through his check list of duties like a pro calling in Virgins, Departing, Returning, New Shoes, Birthdays, Special Recognitions and the like before closing the circle before the remaining hashers had snuck away.

Campari, today's steward, was fortunate the Thai girls were out of ear-range off to the side eating and Lucky Lek had already left as he told joke after joke blasting Thais for being naturally incompetent, idiots and brainless fools. Looking around the circle there were lots of raised eyebrows and a few comments remembering the last time Lucky Lek became angry under similar insults. Not well done steward, and deserving of holding hash shit, which he did!

Wilma, our impedimenta, passed out several numbered shirts to several hashers meeting the 25-Run milestone, the first level of recognition in PH3. Several “black” shirts were awarded for a few reaching higher numbers. Well done to all. It's amazing how fast these shirts come following that first one.

We were especially happy to see Bill The Dick today who raced into the circle (once he got out of his chair) to be recognized as our oldest hasher today at 90-years-old. Then BTM followed up by calling in “harry face” Smut to be given one of BTM's special chilling beer mugs which Smut promptly filled with cold beer and properly drained.

As our AGPU approaches all hashers are asked to consider helping PH3 during the coming year by volunteering to work with the committee, which is a great way for newer members to really meet the hashers. Have a chat with people like Jaws, Manneken Pis or Tequila Slapper—then see the GM
